

Jamesa C. Moone is the Director of Human Resources and Human Capital Management for the First Responder Network Authority (FirstNet), an independent authority within the National Telecommunications and Information Administration of the U.S. Department of Commerce (DOC). In this role she serves as the principal human resources advisor to the Executive Director of FirstNet, Department of Commerce (DOC) Chief Human Capital Officer and policy officials. She develops and implements policy and program guidance in the areas of human resources, human capital management and workforce planning.

Prior to joining FirstNet, Ms. Moone served as the Deputy Chief Human Capital Officer and Human Capital Director for the Office of Management and Budget, Executive Office of the President. Assigned to the Management and Operations Division, she provided leadership in agency human capital planning and policy and supported and advised the Chief Human Capital Officer in the management of program and policy development for OMB's workforce.

Jamesa served as a Senior Analyst for the U.S. Department of Education where she was responsible for the financial and policy administration of federal grants for the Office of Elementary and Secondary Education and Office Postsecondary Education. She was also a Program Analyst for the National Institutes of Health, National Institute of General Medical Sciences.

In addition to her federal experience, Jamesa has extensive leadership and human resources experience in the private sector and higher education. She served as a Senior Consultant for Ellucian (formerly Datatel, Inc.) where she managed product demonstration in human resources and training; as the Director for Staff Development at American University overseeing human resources, recruitment and training; as an Assistant Director of Human Resources for the University of Maryland (College Park) Office of Residence Life; Director of Student Affairs and Residential Life at the Mount Vernon College of George Washington University; and as an Affirmative Action Officer for Montgomery College (Rockville, Maryland).

Jamesa has also served as a faculty member at the University of Maryland and Mount Vernon College. She earned a Bachelor of Arts degree in English from Hampton University and a Master's degree in Education Policy and Leadership from Miami University (Ohio). She is the recipient of numerous awards for superior leadership and exceptional commitment in the advancement of federal human resources programs and initiatives.